A photo of Mary McLeod Bethune sits higher on the wall than any other frame in U.S. Congressman James Clyburn's office in Washington D.C.

It's there to remind the U.S. representative for South Carolina's 6th District of where he came from and how the two's shared hometown of Mayesville remains a proud part of him.

Clyburn came home on Saturday evening for the unveiling of the newest addition to the Mary McLeod Bethune Learning Center and Art Gallery — a portrait of himself.

"There was always a spot missing," said Vivian Fleming-McGhaney, representative for District 5 on the Sumter County Council, of the collection of portraits on the walls.

First-ever cook-off, car show fundraiser for sheriff's office

Smokey barbecue smothered the hot summer air at the Sumter County Fairgrounds on Saturday as bite-sized cups of meat were handed out to be judged all day.

A total of 26 cookers made 3,000 pounds of Boston butt for the first-ever Hot Pursuit BBQ Cook-off and Car Show, according to Mark McLeod of the South Carolina Pork Board.

He organized the event as a fundraiser for the Sumter County Sheriff's Office for vests or family needs or "whatever they need to go to."

"I just thought one day I wanted to do something for the sheriff's department, so we put it together," McLeod said, "and it's turned out real well."

Another feature to the day was the car show, which saw 55 vintage and unique vehicles on display for judging. A row of tractors was parked along the grass, too, from kid-sized to massive.

Sponsors donated door prizes, which sat on the covered stage with a table of trophies to be given out at the end of the day.

Alongside the colorful, shiny cars were also the Pin Ups For of Charleston but wanted to come to the Sumter event on Saturday to spread their reach and help more people.

Overall, McLeod said, the first year of the fundraiser "went way better than what I expected."

Joy Prom gives big night to those with disabilities

Attendees of the annual Joy Prom were welcomed to The O'Donnell House on Friday night by numerous people in the Sumter community.

People from all walks of the Sumter community came together on Friday to host the annual Joy Prom for students and adults with disabilities.

The event, which was held at The O'Donnell House in downtown Sumter, is a partnership between a handful of groups, including the Sumter County Sheriff's Office and First Baptist Church.

Attendees had the opportunity to get their hair and makeup for free at the church before getting into a limo and taken across the street for a red carpet welcome. High school students escorted the prom-goers down the carpet as they were introduced by a DJ.

"The dancing is really the big thing," said Gwen Herod, who works at the sheriff's office.

Herod, who has a granddaughter who has Down Syndrome, said she and a handful of others thought to start a prom for those with disabilities after seeing a similar event in Columbia.

"I think the important thing is to not separate them," she said. "We're all one here. Jesus loves us all the same. It's neat to be able to love on them a little bit."

Evergreen Villas, consisting of 49 workforce or affordable apartment units, will open next year on Wise Drive.

Affordable senior housing complex coming in '19

Evergreen Villas will have 49 2-bedroom units

BY BRUCE MILLS
bruce@theitem.com

One local residential builder thinks a new courtyard-style, affordable housing apartment complex for seniors on Wise Drive next to ALDI grocery store will be a win for Sumter.

Evergreen Villas, which will consist of 49 two-bedroom units at 101 N. Wise Drive, will be customized for individuals 55 and older and should be open in about a year, according to Holly Douglas, development associate with Douglas Development, based out of Horry County.

The complex — which will be constructed as a single three-story building — is a low-income tax credit senior housing development under the state Housing Authority, but it is not subsidized housing, Douglas emphasized last week.

With a tax credit development, seniors must only meet a minimum income standard of about $24,000 when they move in — they aren't penalized as their income goes up, she said.

With subsidized public housing, if a person increases his or her income, the subsidy from the government is cut. Therefore, there can be a disincentive to get promoted or earn more money with subsidized housing.

A tax credit residential development is generally referred to as workforce or affordable housing, Douglas said, and tenants pay a below-market rent.

Douglas estimated the apartments will be open in the first quarter or early summer of 2019 and that her company will likely start taking leasing applications at the beginning of next year.

She forecasted rentals will be between $500 and $600 per month, or about $200 to $300 below the market rate in Sumter.

Tenants still pay utilities and go through credit and other screenings, she said.

It's the builder's first development in Sumter County, Douglas said, but the 25-year-old company has about 3,000-4,000 units in Columbia, Greenville, Myrtle Beach, Charleston, Rock Hill and Florence.

Douglas said her company delivers "a Class A high-quality product" and still owns every development it has ever built.

"In terms of what we will be delivering for $500 to $600," Douglas said, "you will not be able to tell the difference between this and a market-rate conventional product in Sumter."

Double SNAP dollars with Healthy Bucks program

The incentive program that allows SC SNAP recipients to double their SNAP dollars to purchase more fresh fruits and vegetables at participating farmers markets or from participating farmers returns this summer to 20 counties including Sumter and Lee. Administered by the South Carolina Department of Social Services, the Healthy Bucks Incentive Program features 30 vendors this year. One of the goals is to provide accessibility and additional benefits to clients in obtaining healthy, local and non-locally grown nutritious foods.

The program is available to all SC SNAP EBT clients. Clients can go to a participating farmer or farmers market and make an EBT purchase of at least $5. Upon making the purchase, the client will receive $10 in Healthy Bucks tokens to purchase additional fresh fruits and vegetables. Clients are able to receive the $10 incentive once per market day.

Healthy Bucks can be used at Rogers Vegetable Farm, which has multiple locations, in Sumter and Lee counties. Call (803) 840-1636 for information.

Of note:

- SNAP recipients who purchase at least $5 of goods with their SNAP EBT card, will receive $10 in Healthy Bucks tokens;
- SNAP recipients can receive additional fresh fruits and vegetables with their tokens;
- The program is for SNAP recipients only;
- The tokens can only be used to redeem fresh fruits and vegetables; and
- The tokens can be redeemed the same day or at a later date, depending on the farmer and the farmers markets days and hours of operation, or seasonal months.

Sumter County Job Fair aims to grow workforce

Santee-Lynches Regional Council of Governments, in coordination with SC Works and other business partners, will host a Sumter County Job Fair from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Wednesday, May 23, at Sumter County Civic Center, 700 W. Liberty St.

From 9 to 9:30 a.m., the doors will be open to veterans only, according to a news release from Santee-Lynches. All other attendees can enter the job fair at 9:30 a.m.

Sixty employers, many from the Santee-Lynches region, are expected to participate in the job fair including Continental Tire the Americas, Meritor, Target, Thompson Construction, Invista, Crown Health Care Laundry and South Carolina Department of Corrections.

Space is limited for additional employers to register.

"People are the most important and valuable resource we have in our region," said Chris McKinney, executive director of Santee-Lynches.

"This event will provide a tremendous opportunity for employers to meet their workforce needs by connecting with people engaged in the pursuit of happiness through productive and meaningful work."

There is no cost to participate in the job fair.

For more information, contact Steve Berger with SC Works at (803) 774-1306 or (803) 305-5122.

Sumter Sheriff's deputy praised for good deed

BY ADRIENNE SARVIS
adrienne@theitem.com

A Sumter County Sheriff's Office deputy is surprised by the attention he has received for a random good deed he thinks is no big deal.

The deputy, Lt. Trevor Brown with Sumter County Sheriff's Office, was photographed helping Lorenzo Lynch, father of Loretta Lynch, 83rd Attorney General of the United States, with his tie before Morris College's 2018 Commencement Ceremony on May 5 where his daughter was commencement speaker.

Brown said the random act of kindness happened by chance when Lynch's vehicle pulled up near him, and Sumter Fire Department Fire Prevention Specialist Selena Smith snapped the picture.

Brown opened the vehicle door for Lynch and offered to help him step onto the curb when he noticed Lynch was holding a tie.

He then helped Lynch put on his tie after asking if he needed a hand.

"I didn't know who he was at first," Brown said.

He said people have made positive comments on social media about the kind gesture though he doesn't think it warrants the attention.

"That's what first responders do," said Smith who decided to capture the moment with her phone.

There is so much negativity for law enforcement today, but the picture shows that officers have a human side, she said.

Supreme Court makes sports betting a possibility nationwide

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Monday struck down a federal law that bars gambling on football, basketball, baseball and other sports in most states, giving states the go-ahead to legalize betting on sports.

The Supreme Court ruled 6-3 to strike down the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act. The 1992 law barred state-authorized sports gambling with some exceptions. It made Nevada the only state where a person could wager on the results of a single game.

One research firm estimated before the ruling that if the Supreme Court were to strike down the law, 32 states would likely offer sports betting within five years.

"The legalization of sports gambling requires an important policy choice, but the choice is not ours to make. Congress can regulate sports gambling directly, but if it elects not to do so, each state is free to act on its own. Our job is to interpret the law Congress has enacted and decide whether it is consistent with the Constitution. PASPA is not," Justice Samuel Alito wrote for the court.

The court's decision came in a case from New Jersey, which has fought for years to legalize gambling on sports at casinos and racetracks in the state. Then-New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie said after arguments in the case in December that if justices sided with the state, bets could be taken "within two weeks" of a decision.

On Monday, after the ruling was announced, Christie tweeted that it was a "great day for the rights of states and their people to make their own decisions." The state's current governor, Democrat Phil Murphy, also cheered the ruling, saying he was "thrilled" to see the high court strike down the "arbitrary ban." He said he looks forward to working with the legislature to "enact a law authorizing and regulating sports betting in the very near future."

It's possible that the first to market with sports betting in New Jersey will be a racetrack at the Jersey shore. Monmouth Park has already set up a sports book operation and has previously estimated it could take bets within two weeks of a favorable Supreme Court ruling.

Tony Rodio, president of Tropicana Entertainment, said his Atlantic City casino will "absolutely" offer sports betting once it can get it up and running. "It's been a long time coming," he said.

More than a dozen states had supported New Jersey, which argued that Congress exceeded its authority when it passed the law barring states from authorizing sports betting. New Jersey said the Constitution allows Congress to pass laws barring wagering on sports, but Congress can't require states to keep sports gambling prohibitions in place.

All four major U.S. professional sports leagues, the NCAA and the federal government had urged the court to uphold the federal law. In court, the NBA, NFL, NHL and Major League Baseball had argued that New Jersey's gambling expansion would hurt the integrity of their games. Outside court, however, leaders of all but the NFL have shown varying degrees of openness to legalized sports gambling.

The American Gaming Association estimates that Americans illegally wager about $150 billion on sports each year.

New Jersey has spent years and millions of dollars in legal fees trying to legalize sports betting at its casinos, racetracks and former racetracks. In 2012, with voters' support, New Jersey lawmakers passed a law allowing sports betting, directly challenging the 1992 federal law which says states can't "authorize by law" sports gambling. The four major professional sports leagues and the NCAA sued, and the state lost in court.

In 2014, New Jersey tried a different tactic by repealing laws prohibiting sports gambling at casinos and racetracks. It argued taking its laws off the books was different from authorizing sports gambling. The state lost again and then took the case to the Supreme Court.

A surprising bullying battleground: Senior centers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The unwanted were turned away from cafeteria tables. Fistfights broke out at karaoke. Dances became breeding grounds for gossip and cruelty.

It became clear this place had a bullying problem on its hands. What many found surprising was that the perpetrators and victims alike were all senior citizens.

Nursing homes, senior centers and housing complexes for the elderly have introduced programs, training and policies aimed at curbing spates of bullying, an issue once thought the exclusive domain of the young.

"There's the clique system just like everywhere else," said Betsy Gran, who until recently was assistant director at San Francisco's 30th Street Senior Center. "It's like 'Mean Girls,' but everyone is 80."

After the cafeteria exiles and karaoke brouhahas, the 30th Street Center teamed up with a local nonprofit, the Institute on Aging, to develop an anti-bullying program. All staff members received 18 hours of training that included lessons on what constitutes bullying, causes of the problem and how to manage such conflicts. Seniors were then invited to similar classes, held in English and Spanish, teaching them to alert staff or intervene themselves if they witness bullying. Signs and even place mats around the center now declare it a "Bully Free Zone."

"I think in the past I would have just stayed out of it," said Mary Murphy, 86, a retired real estate agent who took the classes. "Now I might be inclined to help."

Robin Bonifas, a social work professor at Arizona State University and author of the book "Bullying Among Older Adults: How to Recognize and Address an Unseen Epidemic," said existing studies suggest about 1 in 5 seniors encounters bullying. She sees it as an outgrowth of frustrations characteristic in communal settings, as well a reflection of issues unique to getting older. Many elderly see their independence and sense of control disappear and, for some, becoming a bully can feel like regaining some of that lost power.

"It makes them feel very out of control," Bonifas said, "and the way they sort of get on top of things and make their name in this new world is intimidating, picking on people, gossiping."

There is far less recognition of bullying as a problem among seniors compared with young people. Even among those who have been called bullies, many are unaware how problematic their behavior is until it's labeled. Campaigns around the country have sought to spread the word, including a booklet circulated last year by the National Center for Assisted Living.

"In the life cycle, it doesn't go away," said Katherine Arnold, a member of the city Human Rights Commission in St. Louis Park, Minnesota, which created a public service announcement on its community-access station that included a portrayal of a man who was excluded from a card game and became the subject of gossip by other seniors. "There's really not a lot of escape."

Most senior bullying isn't physical but rather involves name-calling, rumors and exclusion, said Pamela Countouris, a longtime schoolteacher who now runs a Pittsburgh-based consultancy that offers training on bullying. Women constitute the bulk of the bullies Countouris encounters among seniors, a reflection of lifespan disparities and the gender makeup of those who live at or participate in programs at senior facilities.

Countouris' business began with a focus on school bullying but now centers exclusively on seniors. In the next month alone, she has more than a dozen training sessions planned.

After four years immersed in the wrath of older bullies, Countouris has heard all manner of stories. At a senior high-rise, a woman who saw herself as the queen of the parking garage would key the cars of those who crossed her. Elsewhere, laundry rooms became vicious places where the bullied had their detergent stolen and their clothes thrown on the floor. Bingo rooms so often devolved into battlefields — with lucky newcomers badgered and accused of cheating by veteran players — she came to call it "the devil's game."

"I didn't realize it was an underground society where people could be mean to each other," Countouris said.

In the worst cases, bullying goes far beyond bingo squabbles. Marsha Wetzel moved into a senior apartment complex in Niles, Illinois, after her partner of 30 years died and her partner's family evicted her from the home the couple shared. At Glen St. Andrew Living Community, she said she was met with relentless bullying by residents mostly focused on her being a lesbian.

One man hit Wetzel's scooter with his walker and unleashed a barrage of homophobic slurs. A woman rammed her wheelchair into Wetzel's table in the dining room and knocked it over, warning "homosexuals will burn in hell." In the mailroom, someone knocked her in the head, and in an elevator, she was spit on.

"I'd just go in my room and barricade my door and just pray," said Wetzel, now 70 and living at a senior complex in Chicago. "I just felt like a slug, like I was nothing, like I wasn't even human."

Lambda Legal, which defends LGBTQ rights, took on Wetzel's case and sued Glen St. Andrew, claiming Fair Housing Act violations. A federal judge dismissed the suit last year. An appeals court decision is pending.

Wetzel had seen such bullying throughout her life. She dropped out of high school when she became a punching bag for the girls who learned she was a lesbian. As a senior, she said, it felt even more traumatic — and the bullies even more vicious. She had a view of a cemetery from her window and would stare at it, thinking maybe only when she arrived there would she find peace.

Final Notice and Public Explanation of a Proposed Activity in a 100-Year Floodplain/Wetlands

TOWN OF MAYESVILLE Sewer Upgrade

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Santee-Lynches Regional Council of Governments (SLRCOG), on behalf of the Town of Mayesville, has conducted an evaluation as required by Executive Order 11988 and 11990, in accordance with HUD regulations at 24 CFR 55.20 Subpart C Procedures for Making Determinations on Floodplain Management/Wetlands. The activity is funded through the South Carolina Department of Commerce, Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG), under Grant #4-CI-17-010. The proposed project is located in the Town of Mayesville and the existing right-of-way on Third Street, Avenue A, and US-76 between the Mayesville WWTP and the City of Sumter boundary.

The Town of Mayesville proposes to construct a 200 gallon-per-minute pump station and 6-inch force main transmission line to connect the Town of Mayesville's WWTP to the City of Sumter's collection system.

The Town of Mayesville has considered the following alternatives and mitigation measures to be taken to minimize adverse impacts and to restore and preserve natural and beneficial values:

ALTERNATIVES:

Alternate 1 (No Action) - This alternate would not include a connection to the City of Sumter wastewater system. The WWTP would continue to receive flows in excess of the design capacity, and the undertreated wastewater would continue to be applied to the effluent land application site.

Alternate 2 - This alternate includes the expansion of the Mayesville WWTP. The current design capacity of the WWTP is 100,000 gpd. The WWTP can only be expanded by 10% due to limitations of the effluent sprayfield. Therefore, the maximum design capacity the WWTP could be expanded to would be 110,000 gpd. Expanding the WWTP to 110,000 gpd would not provide enough treatment capacity for the flows the WWTP is currently experiencing; therefore, this is not a viable alternative to meet the needs of the Town.

Alternate 3 - This alternate includes the construction a pump station and force main to connect the Mayesville WWTP to the City of Sumter's collection system at the William Thomas Academy Pump Station.

The proposed project would eliminate the Mayesville WWTP, which is receiving influent flows that exceed its design capacity. In addition it would eliminate the use of the effluent land application site currently utilized for effluent disposal. The land application site is currently receiving excess flow as well as undertreated wastewater. This has the potential to enter waterbodies and negatively impact surrounding waterbodies or the public if they were to come in contact with it.

This alternate meets the purpose and needs of the community, at the lowest cost possible and with minimal environmental impacts; therefore, this alternate is preferred.

MITIGATION MEASURES:

Erosion/Runoff: A silt fence will be placed around each work area and will be left in place until ground cover is reestablished in the disturbed areas.

Historic Preservation: If archaeological materials are encountered during construction, the procedures codified at 36 CFR 800.13(b) will apply and SHPO should be contacted immediately. Should Native American artifacts and/or any human remains located during ground disturbance, the Catawba Indian Nation is to be notified.

Floodplain Management: The 8-step process was required and was conducted as part of the Environmental Assessment. Project design should include provisions to (a) assure that flood hazards will not be created by flow obstructions or debris collection, (b) protect the pipes from high velocity flow at stream crossings, (c) prevent water pollution due to flooded sewer systems, and (d) flood proof any electrical/mechanical equipment that would be damaged by flood waters.

Wetland Disturbance: Impacts to the wetlands will be avoided by utilizing directional boring.

The project proposes to construct a 200 gallon-per-minute pump station and 6-inch force main transmission line to connect the Town of Mayesville's WWTP to the City of Sumter's collection system and is located in the Town of Mayesville and the existing right-of-way on Third Street, Avenue A, and US-76 between the Mayesville WWTP and the City of Sumter boundary.

For this reason E.O. 11988- Floodplain Management and E.O. 11900 applied. This project does not meet any of the exceptions at 24 CFR 55.12 and therefore required an 8-step analysis of the direct and indirect impacts associated with the construction, occupancy, and modification of the floodplains. Impacts to the wetlands will be avoided utilizing directional boring.

The Town of Mayesville has reevaluated the alternatives to building in the floodplain and has determined that it has no practicable alternative. Impacts to the wetlands will be avoided utilizing directional boring. Environmental files that document compliance with steps 3 through 6 of Executive Order 11988, are available for public inspection, review and copying upon request at the times and location delineated in the last paragraph of this notice for receipt of comments.

There are three primary purposes for this notice. First, people who may be affected by activities in floodplains/wetlands and those who have an interest in the protection of the natural environment should be given an opportunity to express their concerns and provide information about these areas. Second, an adequate public notice program can be an important public educational tool. The dissemination of information and request for public comment about floodplains/wetlands can facilitate and enhance Federal efforts to reduce the risks and impacts associated with the occupancy and modification of these special areas. Third, as a matter of fairness, when the Federal government determines it will participate in actions taking place in floodplains and/or wetlands, it must inform those who may be put at greater or continued risk.

Written comments must be received by the Town of Mayesville at the following address on or before May 22, 2018: Jereleen Holliman-Miller, Mayor, PO Box 126, Mayesville, SC 29104, 803-347-2643. A full description of the project may also be reviewed from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at same address as above.

U.N. health agency aims to wipe out trans fats worldwide

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Health Organization has released a plan to help countries wipe out trans fats from the global food supply in the next five years.

The United Nations agency has in the past pushed to exterminate infectious diseases, but now it's aiming to erase a hazard linked to chronic illness.

In a statement Monday, the U.N. health agency said eliminating trans fats is critical to preventing deaths worldwide. WHO estimates that eating trans fats — commonly found in baked and processed foods — leads to the deaths of more than 500,000 people from heart disease every year.

"It's a crisis level, and it's major front in our fight now," WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said at a news conference in Geneva on Monday.

Officials think it can be done in five years because the work is well underway in many countries. Denmark did it 15 years ago, and since then the United States and more than 40 other higher-income countries have been working on getting the heart-clogging additives out of their food supplies.

The WHO is now pushing middle- and lower-income countries to pick up the fight, said Dr. Francesco Branca, director of the WHO's Department of Nutrition for Health and Development.

Artificial trans fats are unhealthy substances that are created when hydrogen is added to vegetable oil to make it solid, like in the creation of margarine or shortening. Health experts say they can be replaced with canola oil or other products. There are also naturally occurring trans fats in some meats and dairy products.

The WHO recommends that no more than 1 percent of a person's calories come from trans fats.

"Trans fats are a harmful compound that can be removed easily without major cost and without any impact on the quality of the foods," Branca said.

Countries will likely have to use regulation or legislation to get food makers to make the switch, experts said.

At the WHO news conference Monday, a representative from a leading food industry trade group said companies are working to reduce trans fats in their products.

"We call on food producers in our sector to take prompt action and we stand ready to support effective measures to work toward the elimination of industrially produced trans fats and ensure a level playing field in this area," said Rocco Rinaldi, secretary-general of the International Food and Beverage Alliance.

Dr. Tom Frieden, a former director of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention who worked with WHO officials on the call to action, called its move unprecedented.

"The world is now setting its sights on today's leading killers — particularly heart disease, which kills more people than any other cause in almost every country," said Frieden, president of Resolve to Save Lives, a New-York-based project of an organization called Vital Strategies.

In the U.S., the first trans fatty food to hit the market was Crisco shortening, which went on sale in 1911. Trans fatty foods became increasingly popular beginning in the 1950s, partly because experts at the time thought they were healthier than cooking with butter or lard.

Food makers liked artificial trans fats because they prolonged product shelf life. They used them in doughnuts, cookies and deep-fried foods.

But studies gradually revealed that trans fats wreck cholesterol levels in the blood and drive up the risk of heart disease. Health advocates say trans fats are the most harmful fat in the food supply.

In the U.S., New York City in 2006 banned restaurants from serving food with trans fats. The same year the FDA required manufacturers to list trans fat content information on food labels.

and throughout the state featured in portraits throughout the building — need to be told to younger generations for posterity.

Those stories began for Clyburn at a young age. Successful in baseball at Lincoln High School, he soon would immerse himself in the Civil Rights Movement and begin to grow his moral compass that so many in Congress listen to.

His time in Congress and fighting for equality and justice may not have been what his mother wanted for him — she wanted him to be a doctor — or his father wanted for him — to be a minister — but he did receive more than 30 honorary doctorates for his work.

“And my dad said, ‘God would rather see a sermon than hear one,’” he said.

Clyburn, who was first elected to Congress in 1993, has myriad accolades to his name, from being a teacher to being House Majority Whip, but his focus on Saturday was home.

He said his mother went to Morris College and never closed her beauty shop as she worked to graduate in three years.

KAYLA ROBINS / THE SUMTER ITEM

The Clyburns gather around the portrait with elected officials from Sumter and Mayesville and other community officials.

“She made me learn everything I could about Mary McLeod Bethune,” Clyburn said. “I will never forget from which I came.”

He said he learned from his mother and continues to learn from his wife, Emily, since they got married in 1961, not too long after she shared a hamburger with him while they were both in jail following a student demonstration at South Carolina State College.

Education and ensuring access to it for African-Americans was a forefront of his conversation, whether it involved the necessity and importance of HBCUs (historically black colleges and universities) like Morris College or the remembrance of his wife having to walk two and a half miles each way to get to school before she was let on a bus.

No one is going to give you permission, he said. That’s not how civil rights activism worked decades ago, and it’s not how it works now.

“If you feel good enough, big enough and bad enough, go do it,” he said.

His wisdom and his track record has an effect on everyone from his own younger brother, who introduced him on Saturday, to Barack Obama, who, in that introduction, Charles Clyburn explained his brother was one of the only congressmen who commanded attention and got it.

Clearly, just because a town is as small as Mayesville does not mean its’ people should be kept in the shadows. He may be in D.C. now, but Clyburn will never forget “from which I came.”

As the linen draping the new portrait was taken down, Clyburn was the first to see it. He stood motionless for a few seconds, taking it in.

Maybe someone could take a picture of the portrait and keep that in Mayesville so he can have the real version, he said jokingly.

He later said he is proud to be from Mayesville and to come back for this honor, which he did not take lightly.

“I know Simmie Knox,” he said of the artist. “I’ll have to tell him how great of a job he did.”

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the Town of Mayesville.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about May 31, 2018, the Town of Mayesville will submit a request to the SC Department of Commerce/Grants Administration Division for the release of CDBG funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, to undertake a project known as the Sewer Upgrade project for the purpose of constructing a 200 gallon-per-minute pump station and a 6-inch force main transmission line to connect the Town of Mayesville’s Wastewater Treatment Plant (WWTP) to the City of Sumter’s collection system at the William Thomas Academy Pump Station. The project location is the existing right-of-way on Third Street, Avenue A and US-76 between the Mayesville WWTP and City of Sumter boundary.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The Town of Mayesville has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Record (ERR) on file at the Mary McLeod Bethune Learning Center (Main Street, Mayesville, SC) and the Santee-Lynches Regional Council of Governments (2525 Corporate Way, Suite 200, Sumter, SC 29154) and may be examined or copied weekdays 9 A.M to 5 P.M.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to Jereleen Holliman-Miller, Mayor, Town of Mayesville, PO Box 126, Mayesville, SC 29104. All comments received by May 30, 2018 will be considered by the Town of Mayesville prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which Notice they are addressing.

ENVIRONMENTAL CERTIFICATION

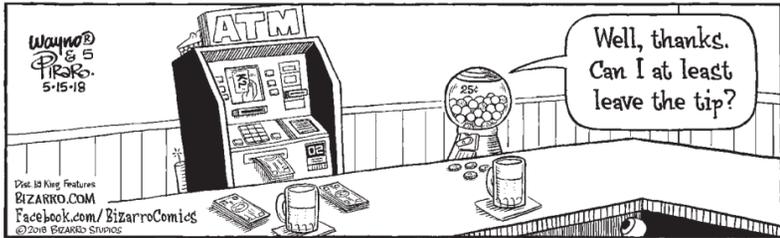

The Town of Mayesville certifies to SC Department of Commerce/Grants Administration Division that Jereleen Holliman-Miller in her capacity as Mayor consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The SC Department of Commerce/Grants Administration Division approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities and allows the Town of Mayesville to use Program funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

The SC Department of Commerce/Grants Administration Division will accept objections to its release of funds and the Town of Mayesville’s certification for a period of fifteen days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later) only if they are on one of the following bases: (a) the certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of the Town of Mayesville; (b) the Town of Mayesville has omitted a step or failed to make a decision or finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR part 58; (c) the grant recipient or other participants in the development process have committed funds, incurred costs or undertaken activities not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by the Department of Commerce/Grants Administration Division; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58, Sec. 58.76) and shall be addressed to SC Department of Commerce/Grants Administration Division at 1201 Main Street, Suite 1600, Columbia, SC, 29201. Potential objectors should contact SC Department of Commerce/Grants Administration Division to verify the actual last day of the objection period.

Republicans celebrate opening of U.S. embassy in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — The opening of the U.S. embassy in Jerusalem attracted more than a dozen Republican members of Congress, two billionaire GOP fundraisers and the president's eldest daughter, putting on a display of political muscle and Republican unity rare for the Trump era.

Even as it sparked deadly protests in the Mideast, President Donald Trump's decision to relocate the embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem united a cross-section of the GOP. It injected new energy into the evangelical movement, which has long wanted the embassy moved because of the deep religious significance of the area. And it pleased big donors and allowed Trump to claim another campaign promise kept.

"Above all else, we've shown that the United States of America will do what's right. And so we have," declared Trump's chief Mideast adviser, son-in-law Jared Kushner.

The celebration underscored the power of the evangelical wing of the party, which has set aside early skepticism of Trump to deliver some of the president's most loyal — and rewarded — backers. The outpouring of support Tuesday, initiated by a president who isn't steeped in the complex issues, even surprised some of the movement leaders.

"This is one thing that's most visible, tangible, recognizable by the evangelical community," said Tony Perkins, who leads the social conservative Family Research Council. "It's actually taken me aback a bit to see just how strongly this is received."

Top officials with the Republican National Committee, along with a delegation of four Republican senators, 10 Republican congressmen and one Republican governor, cheered Kushner from the gallery. The RNC's new finance chair Tom Ricketts attended. The GOP's most powerful political donor, casino magnate Sheldon Adelson, watched from the front row minutes earlier as Ivanka Trump and Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin unveiled the embassy's new facade.

"I did it for my constituents — their love and affection for the people of Israel," said Rep. Joe Wilson, R-S.C., who organized the U.S. delegation's visit. He was also pleased by the Adelson family's reaction.

"Just to see their joy was a moment of happiness for me," Wilson said of Adelson, who in recent days donated $30 million to a super PAC focused on helping the House GOP retain its majority this fall.

Amid this week's parades and receptions across Israel, however, partisan divisions back home were rising to the surface.

Not a single elected Democrat attended the celebration in Israel. Most were silent Monday as the ceremony unfolded on television. A few, including Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer, issued written statements of support.

"Every nation should have the right to choose its capital. I sponsored legislation to do this two decades ago, and I applaud President Trump for doing it," the top Senate Democrat said in a rare moment of agreement with the Republican president.

Wilson said he personally invited "a significant number" of Democrats to attend the festivities in person, but many cited scheduling conflicts.

The politics on the left are far more complicated.

Liberal groups such as Indivisible have opposed moving the embassy, warning it would be provoke violence and demolish trust with the Palestinians, who want East Jerusalem as a future capital.

Violence broke out along the Israel-Gaza border Monday, leaving more than 50 Palestinians dead. The move appeared to end — at least for now — America's chances of becoming a neutral peace broker in the Middle East.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., called the deadly protests in Gaza "just heartbreaking." She called on the administration to state its "unequivocal support" for a two-state solution and restart negotiations.

"The location of the embassy is a final-status issue that should have been resolved as part of peace negotiations where both sides benefit, not just one side," Feinstein said.

Ralph Reed, chairman of the Faith and Freedom Coalition, was among the evangelical leaders invited to the ceremony. He called the absence of Democrats "sad."

Reed had little to say on Pastor Robert Jeffress, the leader of a Dallas-area Baptist church, who delivered the opening blessing at Monday's ceremony. Jeffress has previously called Islam a cult, called Mormonism "a heresy from the pit of hell" and declared Jews "can't be saved."

His participation drew criticism from one prominent Republican, Utah GOP Senate candidate Mitt Romney, who called the pastor a "religious bigot."

Jeffress told The Associated Press he believed his comments were taken out of context.

"I think it's sad that Mitt feels the need to lash out in anger on such a historic day, but it's not going to overshadow what is happening here," he said.

White House spokesman Raj Shah said he couldn't explain how Jeffress became involved with the event. But he said those views, "if they're accurate reflections of what was said, wouldn't be embraced by this White House."

Despite the spat, Monday undoubtedly marked a new high-point for the Christian conservatives, already pleased with Trump's choice for the Supreme Court. Trump, who rarely speaks about his faith and used to support abortion rights, had not been an obvious ally.

Are Bibi and Bolton in wheel house now?

Brushing aside the anguished pleas of our NATO allies, President Trump Tuesday contemptuously trashed the Iranian nuclear deal and reimposed sanctions.

Prime Minister Theresa May of Great Britain, President Emmanuel Macron of France and German Chancellor Angela Merkel were put on notice that their ties to Iran are to be severed, or secondary sanctions will be imposed on them.

Driving the point home, Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin ordered Airbus to cancel its $19 billion contract to sell 100 commercial planes to Iran.

Who is cheering Trump's trashing of the treaty?

The neocons who sought his political extinction in 2016, the royals of the Gulf, Bibi Netanyahu, and the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps. The IRGC had warned Iranians that the Americans were duplicitous.

When Trump finished speaking, Bibi launched strikes on Iranian bases in Syria, and flew to Moscow to persuade Vladimir Putin not to give the Iranians any air defense against Israeli attacks.

Iranian forces responded with 20 missiles fired at the Golan, which ignited a massive Israeli counterstrike Thursday night, a 70-missile attack on Iranian bases in Syria.

We appear to be at the beginning of a new war, and how it ends we know not. But for Bibi and National Security Adviser John Bolton, the end has always been clear -- the smashing of Iran and regime change.

Tuesday, Trump warned that Iran is on "a quest for nuclear weapons," and "if we do nothing ... in just a short period of time, the world's worst sponsor of state terror will be on the cusp of acquiring the world's most dangerous weapon."

And where is the evidence for this Bush-like assertion?

If Iran is on a "quest" for nukes, why did 17 U.S. intel agencies, "with high confidence," in 2007 and 2011, say Iran did not even have a nuclear weapons program?

Saddam Hussein could not convince us he had no WMD, because the nonexistent WMD were the pretext, the casus belli, for doing what the War Party had already decided to do: invade Iraq.

We were lied into that war. And how did it turn out?

Why has the Foreign Relations committee not called in the heads of the U.S. intelligence agencies and asked them flat out: Does Iran have an active nuclear bomb program, or is this a pack of lies to stampede us into another war?

If Iran is on a quest for nukes, let the intel agencies tell us where the work is being done, so we can send inspectors and show the world.

Efforts to pull us back from being dragged into a new war have begun.

The Europeans are begging Iran to abide by the terms of the nuclear deal, even if the Americans do not. But the regime of Hassan Rouhani, who twice defeated Ayatollah-backed candidates, is in trouble.

The nuclear deal and opening to the West were the reasons the children of the Green Movement of 2009 voted for Rouhani. If his difficulties deepen because of reimposed U.S. and Western sanctions, his great achievement, the nuclear deal, will be seen by his people as the failed gamble of a fool who trusted the Americans.

Should Rouhani's regime fall, we may get a Revolutionary Guard regime rather than the liking of everyone, except for the War Party, which could seize upon that as a pretext for war.

What happens next is difficult to see.

Iran does not want a war with Israel in Syria that it cannot win.

Iran's ally, Hezbollah, which just swept democratic elections in Lebanon, does not want a war with Israel that would bring devastation upon the nation it now leads.

The Russians don't want a war with Israel or the Americans.

But as Putin came to the rescue of a Syria imperiled by ISIS and al-Qaida, to save his ally from a broad insurgency, he is not likely to sit impotently and watch endless air and missile strikes on Syria.

Trump has said U.S. troops will be getting out of Syria. But Bolton and the generals appear to have walked him back.

There are reports we are reinforcing the Kurds in Manbij on the west bank of the Euphrates, though President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has demanded that the Kurds vacate all Syrian border towns with Turkey.

Americans are also reportedly on the border of Yemen, assisting Saudi Arabia in locating the launch sites of the rockets being fired at Riyadh by Houthi rebels in retaliation for the three years of savage Saudi assault on their country.

Meanwhile, the news out of Afghanistan, our point of entry into the Near East wars almost a generation ago, is almost all bad — most of it about terrorist bombings of Afghan troops and civilians.

Is the foreign policy that America Firsters voted for being replaced by the Middle East agenda of Bibi and the neoconservatives? So it would appear.

Making hay from horse sense

WASHINGTON — When Donald Trump said, "I could stand in the middle of Fifth Avenue and shoot somebody, and I wouldn't lose voters," it's a good thing he didn't say horses.

Kathleen Parker

The stampe would have been swift and ugly. I should know. In a previous column published on the hooves of the Kentucky Derby, I wrote about the horror of horse slaughter, a fate faced by many of the thoroughbreds we benignly cheer on race days. The situation is both worse (and not-worse) than I reported.

Not worse: The figure I cited of 130,000 horses transported annually out of the country for slaughter was outdated. Although it isn't possible to know the exact number, reports from Mexico and Canada show a significant decrease in imports, in part because of reduced demand following the EU's ban on horsemeat from Mexico. According to the Equine Assistance Project, the true number is closer to half that, which is still abhorrent. Half of two is still too many.

Worse: We haven't outlawed horse slaughter in the U.S. but have only blocked it temporarily. More on this later.

I'm revisiting the topic as I almost never do because of the backlash, frontlash and in-between-lash that followed publication of the column. Let's just say hellfire and brimstone have found a new home in my inbox. Most letter writers were infuriated at my suggestion that perhaps, barring this and that, it would be better to slaughter horses here than there — in Mexico and Canada, where we send the retired steeds under horrendous conditions to be destroyed under the most inhumane circumstances imaginable and then have their meat exported for human consumption.

"Humane slaughter," apparently, is an oxymoron

Although many animal-rights advocates would prefer an end to all animal racing, greyhounds included, more-realistic options are worth pursuing.

when it comes to horses, according to many who wrote me and who are much closer to the problem. A horse's fight-or-flight reflex is so intense that the usual slaughter process is not smooth. The only "humane" death is by injection, preferably by a veterinarian, which we seem to understand when it comes to our smaller-sized pets. But most racehorses are no one's pet; they're money-making machines — overbred and abused by being forced to compete at age 2 or younger, before their bones are fully formed and often leading to injury and euthanasia.

Highlighting this latter point was my purpose in writing about horse racing as a change of pace from the usual politics (speaking of horse races). Watching the Derby on TV with a small crowd, I picked Justify to win on pure happenstance. That is, I happened to be standing next to Kate Denton, a breeder of Irish Connemara ponies in Camden, South Carolina, where I was at the time. Denton spoke to me about what she and many others feel is the barbarity of racing younger-than-3 colts, whereupon I became an immediate convert.

Although many animal-rights advocates would prefer an end to all animal racing, greyhounds included, more-realistic options are worth pursuing. A wide gulf exists between the extremes of eliminating an industry and horrific scenes of horses strung up and butchered in agony and terror.

The best solution, obviously, would be to stop horse slaughter altogether, which we're close to accomplishing in the United States. As foreshadowed earlier, horse slaughter for human consumption has been blocked in the U.S. — hence the exportation of animals to be carved up and processed as food — but not yet outlawed. Rather, funding has been blocked for inspections by the United States Department of Agriculture, with the same, if relatively tenuous, result. Legislation has been written that would go a long way toward eliminating slaughter for human consumption, as well as the exportation of horses for same. The Safeguard American Food Exports Act, a bipartisan bill is, however, stuck in committee and needs a floor vote. A million horses — or even 100 — prancing on the National Mall would get some attention.

The necessity of framing this as a food-quality issue rather than an act of humane compassion underscores the difficulty of trying to enact laws aimed at reducing animal suffering. After all, we can't even agree on when a human fetus suffers pain from being dismembered inside its mother's womb. Thus, the SAFE Act is premised upon the fact that racehorses are given a wide variety of drugs, the residual effects of which could be harmful to horsemeat consumers.

Whatever works. Pending the bill's approval, horse rescue and adoption agencies, which try to retrain horses for other purposes, could use some encouragement and financial backing, too. In a just world, organizations such as the Jockey Club and the American Quarter Horse Association, among others, would fund these adoption and rescue groups and, in untrainable cases, provide for veterinarian-administered euthanasia by injection.

If for no other reason, it would be good PR for an industry that could sorely use some.

The last word in astrology

EUGENIA LAST

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An unexpected change

should not be handled poorly. You may not like what's offered, but making a fuss won't help you maintain respect or buy you the time you need to plan your next move.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Share your feelings; be blunt about what you'd like to see happen. Speaking up will help you impress upon others how much the changes you want to make mean to you. Don't hold back; you will gain support and satisfaction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take a look at how you relate to others as well as how you respond and deal with situations that involve personal matters. Question if there are things you can do to improve your life and your relationships.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Work hard, play hard and resolve unfinished business. Handle matters without hesitation; move on to the people and the things you enjoy most. If someone needs a helping hand, do what you can, but not at your expense.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't make matters difficult or let someone else complicate your life. Do what needs to be done and live within your means. Too much of anything will cause emotional or financial problems. Use common sense when working in conjunction with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep moving forward regardless of what others do. Make changes that suit your needs and that will position you for future gains. Network, collaborate and be willing to try something new and exciting. A partnership will stimulate your imagination.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Personal change will be the most satisfying. If you try to change someone else, you will end up fighting a losing battle. Do what works best for you, and stop worrying about what you have no control over.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Gravitate toward what interests you most. Learning something new, as long as it doesn't cost you emotionally, physically or financially, will serve you well. Getting together with a friend, relative or lover offering support or guidance will pay off.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): How you deal with relationships will determine your success. Getting along with your peers or someone close to you will be necessary if you want to get ahead. Love and romance are featured and will improve your personal life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Think big but live within your means. If you can look at the big picture and size it down to fit your needs, you will be successful. A change at home will boost your morale and encourage you to spend more time there.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't take on too much or make unnecessary trips. Keep life simple; do not make changes that will affect others. Focus on updating your look and improving your skills. A romantic gesture will improve your attitude and lead to positive lifestyle changes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take care of your health. Someone will mislead you regarding his or her intent. If you aren't certain, ask questions. Look for an investment or financial opportunity that will raise your standard of living. Reconnect with someone from your past.

Game 2 is scheduled for today at the Lady Cardinals' field in Columbia. A third game, if needed, is scheduled for Wednesday at a neutral site.

The Lady Cardinals got runners to third in each of the first four innings against WH starting pitcher Drake Ives, but couldn't push a run across.

Ives walked leadoff batter M.K. Gillespie to start the game. She was on third two pitches later on a wild pitch and a passed ball. Ives responded by striking out Kaytlin Greenwood, Maddie Dinkins and Hannah Bostic.

Ray Allen says LeBron James doing what he does in playoffs

BY PETE IACOBELLI
The Associated Press

COLUMBIA — Ray Allen has enjoyed watching former teammate LeBron James lead Cleveland through the NBA playoffs. And it's not much different than what Allen saw almost daily when the two were part of the Miami Heat's run to a NBA title in 2013.

"He's the main cog of what the Cavaliers are doing," Allen said Monday. "I don't see him doing anything outside of his spectrum. He's doing what he's been doing most of his career. When we start talking playoff basketball and about the players who are good, we expect them to do their jobs when it's time to do their jobs."

For the two-time NBA champion in Allen, there's no higher compliment.

Allen spent his stellar, 19-year career well prepared for whatever moment there was. He was a 10-time NBA all-star who helped a trophy-starved Boston to a championship in 2008, then joined James, Dwyane Wade and Chris Bosh with the Heat to capture the 2013 crown.

this week to be part of the newest group of inductees into the South Carolina Athletic Hall of Fame.

"This is my first induction into any hall of fame," Allen said, smiling.

Allen, 42, left the game after the 2014 season as the NBA leader in career 3-pointers made — more than 400 more than Reggie Miller in second place. Allen's also known for several big moments on the court, including his seven 3-pointers in the sixth and final game of the 2008 title series to defeat the Los Angeles Lakers to help the Celtics win their first championship since 1986.

It was Allen's 3-pointer from the right corner for the Heat in game six of the 2013 series with San Antonio that tied things at 95-all, a game Miami would go on to win in overtime before closing out the title run a game later.

Analysis: Harvick chasing perfection

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — Kevin Harvick had just taken the checkered flag for the fifth time this season, wheeled his car into victory lane and bathed in another confetti shower when he lamented what could have been.

Come again? "Still wasn't really happy with it," Harvick said of his No. 4 for Stewart-Haas Racing, which he set a record in Saturday night at Kansas Speedway by becoming the fastest to five victories.

"I think," Harvick said, "we can make it better when we come back."

That shouldn't make the rest of the Monster Energy Cup Series feel very good about things. Harvick has won back-to-back races after a three-race win streak earlier this season, and heads into next week's All-Star race at Charlotte as the one guy head and shoulders above everyone else.

But his response to his victory at Kansas, where he overcame trouble getting through inspections and a car that was off much of the night, speaks to a couple of very crucial facts.

First, it shows how demanding Harvick is of his team, and how nobody in the garage is willing to settle for greatness — not when there is perfection to chase. Pit stops could be cleaner, the car could handle the least little bit better, and the margin of victory could be even more comfortable.

"They're hitting on all cylinders," marveled reigning series champion Martin Truex Jr., who was in a similar spot last season, when he reached victory lane eight times. "They've got a great balanced race car and they're doing all the right things, and we're just a step behind that."

So is everybody else. The second thing Harvick's response to his victory demonstrates is that, well, he hasn't changed a whole lot over the years. Harvick earned the nickname "Happy Harvick" as a joke, a play off the fact he was prone to emotional outbursts.

Supreme Court makes sports betting a possibility nationwide

BY JESSICA GRESKO
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Monday gave its go-ahead for states to allow gambling on sports across the nation, striking down a federal law that barred betting on football, basketball, baseball and other sports in most states.

The justices voted 6-3 to strike down the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act, a 1992 law that forbade state-authorized sports gambling with some exceptions. It made Nevada the only state where a person could wager on the results of a single game.

Many states have hoped their cut of legalized sports gambling could help solve budget problems. Stock prices for casino operators and equipment makers surged after the ruling was announced.

The ruling, in a case from New Jersey, creates an opening to bring an activity out of the shadows that many Americans already see as a mainstream hobby. The American Gaming Association estimates that Americans illegally wager about $150 billion on sports each year, and one research firm estimated before the ruling that if the Supreme Court were to strike down the law, 32 states would likely offer sports betting within five years.

Justice Samuel Alito wrote for the court, "The legalization of sports gambling requires an important policy choice, but the choice is not ours to make. Congress can regulate sports gambling directly, but if it elects not to do so, each state is free to act on its own. Our job is to interpret the law Congress has enacted and decide whether it is consistent with the Constitution. PASPA is not."

Webb Simpson watches his putt on the eighth green during the final round of The Players Championship on Sunday in Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida. Simpson won by four strokes.

Belly-putter ban lifts game for Players winner

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. — Webb Simpson credited everyone around him for winning The Players Championship, his fifth career victory and in some respects his most important. And he didn't stop with those he considers to be part of his team.

Thank-you notes also are in order for the USGA and the R&A.

Golf's governing bodies outlawed the anchored stroke that Simpson had used with his belly putter since he was a teenager. Simpson won the 2012 U.S. Open at Olympic Club, one of three major champions in an 11-month span to use a belly putter.

Simpson struggled mightily when forced to learn an entirely different way to putt.

That's no longer the case. He led the field in putting during his four-shot victory at The Players Championship, and that wasn't just one great week. Simpson was 10th on the PGA Tour going into the TPC Sawgrass. Now he is at No. 5 in the key putting statistic.

"It's funny how those things happen," Simpson said. "This is probably the first time I can say I'm glad they banned it because I wouldn't have ever probably swayed away from the belly putter."

He was always determined to play by the rules. He just wasn't successful at the onset.

The ban took effect in 2016. Simpson decided to switch a year earlier, though he started to waver. On his way to Japan for the Dunlop Phoenix in late 2014, he told caddie Paul Tesori he was bringing the belly putter with him for just one more tournament.

Instead, he took a drastic measure.

"I see my bag in the garage, and I see the belly putter, and for whatever reason I had an urge to just break it," Simpson said. "If I break it, I can't take it with me. And so I go over there and snap it over my knee."

Instead of pitching it in the trash, his wife persuaded him to keep it. Both pieces are in his trophy case.

But it wasn't smooth sailing. Simpson had an average ranking of 36th in putting his first six years on tour with the belly putter. Once he went conventional, he fell to No. 174. He put the broken pieces in the case, but he didn't add any trophies with the regular putter.

The low point was 2016 at the start of the FedEx Cup playoffs, when he started to get short with his caddie, and they sat in the car in the parking lot at Bethpage Black talking about how to move forward.

The low point became a turning point. Simpson, stubborn about being a conventional putter, became more open-minded about other ideas. He called other players to see what they tried, and what worked.

"I think I was too closed-minded and just tried to learn a lot about putting and what's important," Simpson said. "Talking to great putters helped. Aaron Baddeley and Brandt Snedeker, had tons of conversations with those guys."

It led him to use a longer putter that runs up the left side of his arm, which Matt Kuchar made popular. And then he found what Simpson calls the "missing link," provided by former Players champion Tim Clark. They were at Sawgrass a year ago when Clark suggested that Simpson use a claw grip with that style of putter.

Rival trainers Baffert, Lukas share a strong friendship

BY STEPHEN WHYNO
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Baffert has spent his whole life following D. Wayne Lukas.

As a teenager at the quarter horse track in Arizona where Baffert tagged along with his dad and learned about racing, he looked up to Lukas as a legend.

"I'll never forget when he came in with his fancy trailer and man, there's Wayne Lukas," Baffert said. "He was huge then. He's always set the bar."

Baffert even asked Lukas for a job out of high school. Lukas turned Baffert down, but in the four-plus decades since, they've developed a friendship as deep as their combined success.

They are two of the best thoroughbred trainers in racing history and their paths are crossing again this week at Pimlico Race Course in Baltimore. They will go head to head in the Preakness, a race that each has won six times.

"We've become good friends because we have a lot in common, we had a lot of quarter horse stories and friends that we knew coming up," Baffert said. "It's been a lot of fun."

Baffert goes into the Preakness with Kentucky Derby winner Justify, the heavy favorite to advance to the Belmont Stakes with the chance to give the 65-year-old his second Triple Crown champion in four years. A win Saturday would tie the 83-year-old Lukas' record of 14 Triple Crown victories.

Lukas said Baffert "is going to roll right past that" mark.

"Bob is an excellent horseman," said Lukas, who is expected to start Bravazo and Sporting Chance in the Preakness. "Not only has he got a good clientele base and gets some nice horses, but he absolutely knows what to do with them."

Baffert's dad got him involved in horse racing at age 11 and he considers his father his mentor — but he holds Lukas in high regard. Lukas has been an icon and rival for Baffert over the years, especially in the 1990s and 2000s when owner Bob Lewis pitted the two against each other.

Calling Lukas one of the hardest workers he has ever seen, Baffert set out to duplicate those efforts with incredible success. Lukas and Baffert just kept winning — including a combined 34 Breeders Cup' races to go along with the Triple Crown victories — and became closer along the way.

"The one thing that you quickly find out is who you can greatly respect and respect is what really starts to bond these friendships that we develop over the years," Lukas said. "I have developed a deep friendship and respect with him and his whole family, (his wife) Jill and everybody for the simple reason that I think he's a very good horseman and he does a very, very good job."

Celtics take Game 1 of East finals, beating Cavaliers 108-83

BY JIMMY GOLEN

BOSTON — The assignment for Boston Celtics forward Marcus Morris in his first start this postseason was easy to explain but nearly impossible to execute.

His job: Guard LeBron James, and keep the four-time NBA MVP from running the Celtics out of their own gym in the Eastern Conference finals for the second year in a row.

"He's obviously the best player in the game," said Morris, who during the week boasted that he was up to the challenge and on Sunday explained why he wanted it.

"Because I'm a competitor."

Boston forward Marcus Morris (13) makes a move against Cleveland forward LeBron James (23) during the second half of Game 1 of the NBA Eastern Conference Finals on Sunday in Boston.

He's the best player, and I'm going to be able to tell my kids this one day."

Morris scored 21 points and added 10 rebounds while pestering James into a playoff-high seven turnovers — and a playoff-low 15 points — and the Celtics opened a 21-point, first-quarter lead to scorch Cleveland 108-83 in Game 1.

Jaylen Brown scored 23 points and Al Horford had 20 for Boston, which ran off 17 points in a row in the first and never allowed the Cavaliers within single digits again. The Celtics led by 28 when Cleveland coach Tyronn Lue pulled James for good with 7:09 left.

Game 2 is Tuesday night. "I have zero level of concern at this stage," said James, who was 5 for 16 from the floor and missed all five 3-point attempts.

"I've been down before in

Allen, who also played for Milwaukee and Seattle, prefers remembering the smaller moments, ones fans don't see where teammates practice together and commit to let their talent and effort loose in games.

"The moments when the guys counted on me to come through for them," he said. "Just being accountable."

That's what Allen sees from James as much in a first-quarter blocked shot or box out as in a last-second banker to defeat Toronto in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

"It's being a good teammate," he said. "The people see the big shots, but what we see is, 'Man, he was a great teammate. He was always there.'"

As far as the all-time debate, Allen gives the edge to Michael Jordan over James. Playing against both of them, Allen said Jordan "didn't have any weaknesses. There was just no way that you could stop him."

Allen is certain James, especially with more playoff showings like this season, will make a stronger case for the top spot.

Allen missed Boston's opening game conference finals win over Cleveland and James on Sunday as he had just returned from China where he was promoting the NBA. It's a country hungry for more of the game, Allen said. He said he met one fan there who had his signature sneakers from his early days in Milwaukee.

He's not pulling for the Celtics or Cavaliers, just more compelling playoff basketball.

And there should be plenty of that Tuesday night when Golden State plays at Houston, and when there should be plenty of 3-pointers being tossed up.

Allen, though one of the all-time great long-range shooters in the NBA, doesn't enjoy talking about the role he played in the evolution of game, where 3-pointers are being shot in record numbers. Allen attempted 500 or more 3s just three times in 19 seasons. Steph Curry and Klay Thompson have each done that for the Warriors the past six seasons.

"I just believe I did what I was supposed to do when I had my time," Allen said. "I try never to play those woulda, coulda, shouldas."

Ives walked Jasmine Hogan to start the second. Hogan advanced to second on a passed ball and was sacrificed to third by Karson Hocutt. Ives responded again, striking out Cam Argoe and Erin Boyer.

With one out in the third, Gillespie hit a grounder down the third base line that the home plate umpire initially called a foul ball. After a consultation with the third base umpire, the ball was called fair and Gillespie was awarded second with a double.

That brought a heated discussion from WH head coach Teresa Alexander, but to no avail. Ives got out of the jam by getting Greenwood to ground out, moving Gillespie to third. She struck out Dinkins for the final out.

Bostic dropped a single into shallow center to start the fourth. Ives proceeded to strike out Hogan and Hocutt, but Bostic got to second on a passed ball and to third on a wild pitch. Ives got out of trouble again by catching Argoe looking at a called third strike.

Ives looked to be heading to her easiest inning in the fifth when she retired the first two trying to bunt. However, things turned quickly.

Gillespie was hit by a pitch and

Wilson Hall's Drake Ives delivers a pitch during the Lady Barons' 6-5 victory in eight innings over Cardinal Newman in the opening game of the SCISA 3A softball state championship series on Monday at Patriot Park SportPlex.

Greenwood hit one just behind the circle that neither third baseman Madison Sliwonik nor shortstop Madison Elmore could reach. Dinkins hit a line drive that hit off the glove of first baseman Becca Noyes that loaded the bases.

Bostic followed with a slicing line drive to right. Lady Barons rightfielder Amelia Weston came in on the ball, but it hit her glove, but hit her face as well. The bases were cleared with Bostic ending up on third to make it 3-1.

After a delay as Weston was taken care of and removed from the game, Hogan singled back up the middle to drive in Bostic and make it 4-1.

Wilson Hall didn't stay down long though. Caitleigh Bryant, who replaced Weston in right, hit a shot to right just inside the line that ended up as a ground rule double. Elmore flew out for the second out before Carly Allred reached on a bunt single.

That brought Ives to the plate, and she hit a 1-2 pitch to straight center that easily cleared the fence for a 3-run, game-tying home run.

Wilson Hall's first run came in its half of the first. Allred legged out a bunt for an infield single with one out. She stole second and scored on a 2-out double to the gap in right-center field by Sydney Jarecki to make it 1-0.

The Lady Barons looked to have another run in the fourth when Madison Sliwonik hit a line drive into the gap in left-center. Centerfielder Hogan laid out while running to the gap and made a diving grab to keep Jarecki, who had walked, from scoring.

Justices Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Stephen Breyer and Sonia Sotomayor dissented. Ginsburg wrote for the three that when a portion of a law violates the Constitution, the court "ordinarily engages in a salvage rather than a demolition operation," preserving what it can. She said that instead of using a "scalpel to trim the statute" her colleagues used "an axe" to cut the remainder down. Breyer agreed with the majority of the court that part of the law must be struck down but said that should not have doomed the rest of the law.

The federal government and all four major U.S. professional sports leagues and the NCAA had urged the court to uphold the federal law, with the leagues saying a gambling expansion would hurt the integrity of their games. Those concerns are rooted in past gambling scandals. The leagues don't want anyone thinking the outcome of their games could be altered by someone with money on a certain result, and they argued that with legal sports betting in the United States they'd have to spend a lot more money monitoring betting patterns and investigating suspicious activity.

Sports gambling proponents argue that the leagues already do that work and that legal sports betting will make enforcement easier than it is now, when most bets in the U.S. are made illegally. They say state regulators are capable of monitoring suspicious bets, as is done in Nevada.

On Monday, Major League Baseball issued a statement saying the Supreme Court ruling would have "profound effects" on the league and that it would "continue to seek the proper protections for our sport."

NBA commissioner Adam Silver says the pro basketball league remains in favor "of a federal framework that would provide a uniform approach to sports gambling in states that choose to permit it." He said that "regardless of the particulars of any future sports betting law, the integrity of our game remains our highest priority."

Representatives of the National Hockey League and National Football League had no immediate comment on the ruling, saying they were analyzing it. The NCAA's chief legal officer said the organization is still reviewing the court's decision but added that it "will adjust sports wagering and championship policies to align with the direction from the court."

The court's decision came in a case from New Jersey, which has fought for years to legalize gambling on sports at casinos and racetracks. Former Gov. Chris Christie said after arguments in the case in December that if justices sided with the state, bets could be taken "within two weeks" of a decision.

After the ruling was announced, the former Republican governor tweeted that it was a "great day for the rights of states and their people to make their own decisions." The state's current governor, Democrat Phil Murphy, also cheered the ruling, saying he was "thrilled" to see the high court strike down the "arbitrary ban." He said he looked forward to working with the Legislature to "enact a law authorizing and regulating sports betting in the very near future."

Monmouth Park, a racetrack at the Jersey Shore, has already set up a sports book operation and has previously estimated it could take bets within two weeks of a favorable ruling.

Tony Rodio, president of Tropicana Entertainment, said his Atlantic City casino will "absolutely" offer sports betting once it can get it up and running. "It's been a long time coming," he said.

New Jersey has spent years and millions of dollars in legal fees trying to legalize sports betting. In 2012, with voters' support, New Jersey lawmakers passed a law allowing sports betting, directly challenging the 1992 federal law. The four major professional sports leagues and the NCAA sued, and the state lost in court.

And while he may have mellowed over the years, that streak is still in there, capable of rearing its head at the most unsuspecting of moments.

Given the way the season has gone, though, Happy Harvick probably ought to be simply happy.

He began his winning streak at Atlanta, continued it at Las Vegas and made it three straight with a triumph in Phoenix. An early wreck in California ended the streak, but he finished in the top 10 in each of the next five races, including a second-place run at Texas and a pole at Talladega.

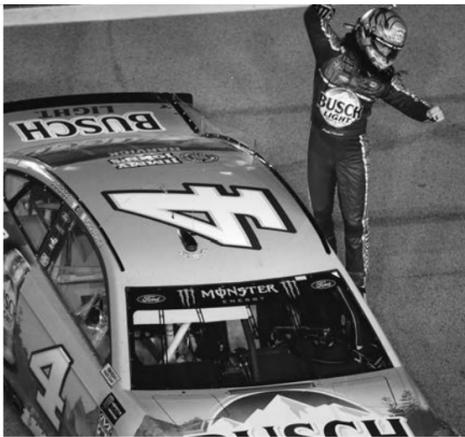

Harvick returned to his winning ways at Dover, when he started second and led 201 of the 400 laps en route to a dominant victory. And the hot streak continued at Kansas, where he had to race out of the garage for qualifying because of problems at inspection and still landed on the pole.

He was clearly the fastest car on the track early on, then struggled to keep pace with Kyle Larson and Ryan Blaney through the middle stretches. But a series of late wrecks, including a tangle between Larson and Blaney that knocked the latter from the race, reset the field for a final sprint.

With four fresh tires, Harvick roared from sixth on the restart with 10 laps to go, chased down Truex at the start-finish line of the final lap and cruised to his record-setting win.

One that left everybody else feeling just a bit helpless.

"There isn't a real bright shiny tool you can use and say, 'There it is!'" said Joey Logano, who finished third. "It's just a bunch of little things. They're doing everything right. They've got a ton of speed, they're qualifying first and they're winning a bunch of races."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kevin Harvick (4) celebrates after winning the KC Masterpiece 400 at Kansas Speedway on Saturday in Kansas City, Kansas.

Indeed, the entire Stewart-Haas stable has had a ton of speed this season. Clint Bowyer ended his long victory drought at Martinsville, and teammate Aric Almirola was in the top 10 on Saturday night.

"I think as an organization all our cars are running better, which is exciting to me and everybody back at the shop," said Greg Zipadelli, the team's vice president of competition. "It's crazy to see what these guys have done this year. It's just really cool. You have to keep riding it."

Harvick said the same thing: When you're on a hot streak, you have to ride it as long as possible.

Maybe that's why he bemoaned what little bit of speed was left on the track Saturday night, and why he is pushing his team so hard despite so much success. He knows that everything can spin the other way in a hurry, and that it's time for him to make the most of his chance out front.

Recycling of 1990s shows, celebrities continues

BY KEVIN MCDONOUGH

Will we ever get out of the 1990s? It's understandable why programmers recycle shows and celebrities from a quarter-century back. They appeal to the youngish viewers who were just kids when the Ford Taurus was still a design sensation, Bill Clinton was a fresh new face and "Smells Like Teen Spirit" and "Mortal Kombat" were newly released.

We'll just have to live with all this '90s nostalgia until a yearning for the early aughts kicks in. As critics, we simply get to carp at what they choose to recycle. Just why did Netflix go with "Fuller House" when a reboot of "Daria" was just what we needed?

Things get odd when 1990s relics try to remain relevant. Much of the chatter about the "Roseanne" (8 p.m., ABC, TV-PG) revival stems from the title character's allegiance to the current president, himself a pop culture artifact from the zircon-plated 1980s.

Among the more regrettable tabloid sensations of the 1990s was the marriage of "Roseanne" star Roseanne

Barr and comedian Tom Arnold. Their four-year union may have been nasty, brutish and short, but it coincided with Barr's decision to fire some of the talent that created "Roseanne," estrange herself from her family, sue her sister and accuse her parents of molestation.

Arnold was even written into "Roseanne" as a character, "Arnie Thomas." He would go on to star on shows named "Tom" (which he produced with Barr) in 1994 and "The Tom Show" in 1997, after their acrimonious split.

By dint of coincidence (or spite), Arnold can be seen tonight on the two-hour season finale of "NCIS: New Orleans" (9 p.m., CBS, TV-14). Facing trumped-up charges, Pride (Scott Bakula, from the early '90s series "Quantum Leap") assembles a renegade posse of colleagues, including recurring character Elvis Bertrand, portrayed by Arnold.

Arnold's return to TV isn't limited to "New Orleans." Viceland recently announced that he would appear as host and investigator on "The Hunt for the Trump Tapes With Tom Arnold." The series would follow his search for colorful recordings from TV and radio appearances and outtakes from "The Apprentice," among other things.

Tonight's other finales include the series departure for "New Girl" (9 p.m., Fox, TV-14), featuring an hour of clips and reminiscences.

The fourth season finale of "blackish" (9 p.m., ABC, TV-PG) finds Dre alone in a "dream house" that seems terribly empty.

Opening night for the big drama brings closing night for "Rise" (9 p.m., NBC, TV-14). A case of conjoined twins has Dr. Rhodes beside himself on the third season finale of "Chicago Med" (10 p.m., NBC, TV-14). Dick Wolfe's "Law & Order: SVU" and all the "Chicago" series will be returning to NBC's schedule.

TONIGHT'S OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

- "Civilizations" (8 p.m., PBS, TV-PG, check local listings) recalls the clash of cultures that would produce the Renaissance.

- The results of the semifinals are made known on "The Voice" (8 p.m., NBC, TV-PG).

- Amid family crises, Brick overcompensates with lawn chairs on "The Middle" (8:30 p.m., ABC, TV-PG).

- New neighbors bring fresh problems on "The 100" (9 p.m., CW, TV-14).

- The archaeology-based series "Unearthed" (9 p.m., Science) returns for a third season.

- Sandra's zeal lands her in jeopardy on "For the People" (10 p.m., ABC, TV-14).

- A delusion produces calamity on "Legion" (10 p.m., FX, TV-MA).

CULT CHOICE

TCM spends the day with Joseph Cotten, starting with the campy 1964 shocker "Hush ... Hush, Sweet Charlotte" (12:15 p.m.). "The Third Man" (2:30 p.m.), "Journey Into Fear" (4:30 p.m.) and "Citizen Kane" (5:45 p.m.) follow.

SERIES NOTES

Gibbs sees an old face at a funeral on "NCIS" (8 p.m.,

LATE NIGHT

Gayle King is booked on "The Daily Show With Trevor Noah" (11 p.m., Comedy Central) * Nick Kroll, John Mulaney, Dan Rogers and Debra DiGiovanni appear on "Conan" (11 p.m., TBS, r) * Jamie Foxx and Nathaniel Rateliff & the Night Sweats are booked on "The Late Show With Stephen Colbert" (11:35 p.m., CBS) * Hank Azaria, Kyle MacLachlan and George Ezra appear on "The Late Late Show With James Corden" (12:35 a.m., CBS).

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF SOUTH CAROLINA CLERK'S OFFICE
NOTICE OF FILING

DOCKET NO. 2018-142-E

Joint Application of Duke Energy Carolinas, LLC; Duke Energy Progress, LLC and South Carolina Electric & Gas Company

Duke Energy Carolinas, LLC, Duke Energy Progress, LLC, and South Carolina Electric & Gas Company (jointly, the Companies) have filed a Joint Application for executory transfer and sale of property with the Public Service Commission of South Carolina (the Commission). In order for the Companies to participate in the Regional Equipment Sharing for Transmission Outage Restoration (RESTORE) program, the Companies request approval from the Commission for the executory transfer of electric transformers and other critical transmission-related equipment with a fair market value of greater than one million dollars, as provided for by the agreement governing that program (RESTORE AGREEMENT). "Qualifying Equipment" is defined on page three of the RESTORE Agreement, and Qualifying Equipment includes electric transformers and other critical transmission-related equipment. In support of the Request, the Applicants state, "the Companies believe that, given the catastrophic nature of a Triggering Event and the need to efficiently implement a response, there would not be sufficient time to apply to the Commission for approval and still meet the commitments of the RESTORE Agreement in a timely manner." Page nine of the Joint Application states, "[t]he Commission's prior approval for the Companies to participate in the RESTORE program and to transfer Qualifying Equipment that has a fair market value of greater than one million dollars, combined with a timely reporting requirement once transfers take place, will ensure that an impacted utility can restore its system to operation as efficiently and transparently as reasonably possible. The Joint Application was filed pursuant to S.C. Code Ann. §58-27-1300.

A copy of the Joint Application can be found on the Commission's website at www.psc.sc.gov under Docket No. 2018-142-E. Additionally, a copy of the Joint Application is available from the office of Heather S.
